CONFIDENTIAL

Crocs . 12-Month Growth Plan

From comfort brand to lifestyle subscription

How a comfort brand turns occasional buyers into a recurring lifestyle subscription . without discounting the product.

PREPARED BY
Growth Team

ORGANISATION
Northfield Strategy

PREPARED FOR Crocs Inc.

DATE
November 2026

CONTENTS

In this document

Executive summary 3
Where we are today 3
Market 4
SWOT 5
Objectives 5
Strategy and mix 5
Positioning 5
Targeting (sequence) 5
Mix 5
Action programs 6
Q1 . Foundation 6
Q2 . Launch 7
Q3 . Scale 7
Q4 . Gifting and retention 7
Budget 7
Controls 8
Measurement 8
Cadence 9
Risk and mitigation 9

Executive summary

Crocs is one of the most recognised comfort brands on the planet. That is not the same as being a recurring-revenue business. Most buyers reach for a pair when a pair breaks . not because they are told to. This plan fixes that gap with Crocs Club, a quarterly subscription that turns an occasional purchase into a habit: one curated pair, exclusive customization, early access to drops, and a direct line to the product team.

The opportunity is real. Comfort-footwear growth is outpacing the wider category by 3x. Urban 18-34 buyers . the same people who adopted meal boxes and beauty subscriptions . are the natural audience. The constraint is not demand; it is that we have never asked for the second purchase in a structured way.

ACTIVE SUBSCRIBERS	QUARTERLY RECURRING REVENUE	CUSTOMER ACQUISITION COST
340k	$42m	$31
target	target	-28%

CHURN (QUARTERLY)	NET PROMOTER SCORE
8%	72
-3pts	+12

THE STRATEGY . NO DASHES, REAL TONE

Sell the habit, not the shoe. The club is a quarterly refresh that removes the decision of what to wear next, without cheapening the brand.

Where we are today

Two channels drive most of the revenue: direct-to-consumer (strong margins, low volume) and wholesale (high volume, thin margins). The brand has high awareness but low switching cost . customers buy when they need a pair, not because they are told to.

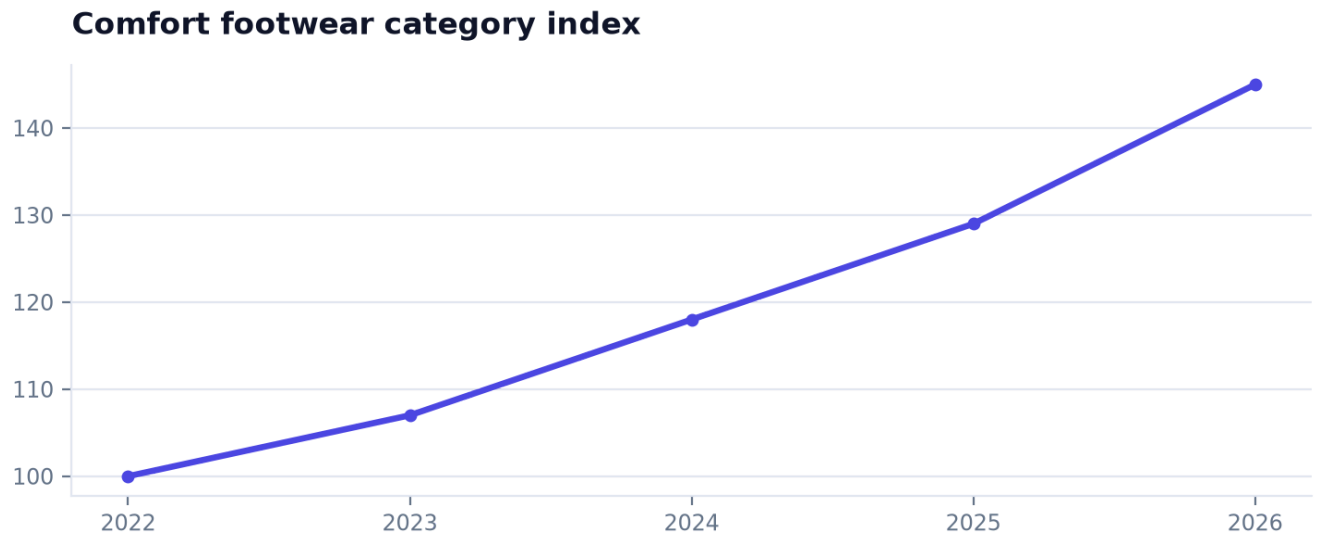

Fig. 1 Crocs shoe product photo

Tatsuo Yamashita from Tokyo, Japan · CC BY 2.0 · Wikimedia Commons

Market

The comfort-footwear category is growing faster than general footwear, and the at-home / casual segment has held its post-2020 habits. Subscription fashion is still niche but rising sharply among 18-34 urban buyers.

Comfort footwear category index

SWOT

STRENGTHS

- Global brand awareness
- Light, washable product
- Loyal repeat buyers
- Scalable supply chain

WEAKNESSES

- Perceived as casual-only
- Low direct subscription rate
- Thin wholesale margins
- Limited customization today

OPPORTUNITIES

- Subscription growth in lifestyle fashion
- Corporate gifting in Q4
- Customization / personalization tech
- Collaboration drops

THREATS

- Fast-fashion competitors cutting price
- Material cost volatility
- Brand fatigue if over-used in collabs
- Rising digital acquisition costs

Objectives

OBJECTIVE	METRIC	BASELINE	TARGET	DEADLINE
Launch subscription	Active subscribers	0	340k	Month 12
Grow recurring revenue	Quarterly recurring revenue	$0	$42m	Month 12
Capture existing demand	Email / SMS list	4.2m	12m	Month 6
Protect margin	Gross margin	54%	58%	Month 12

Strategy and mix

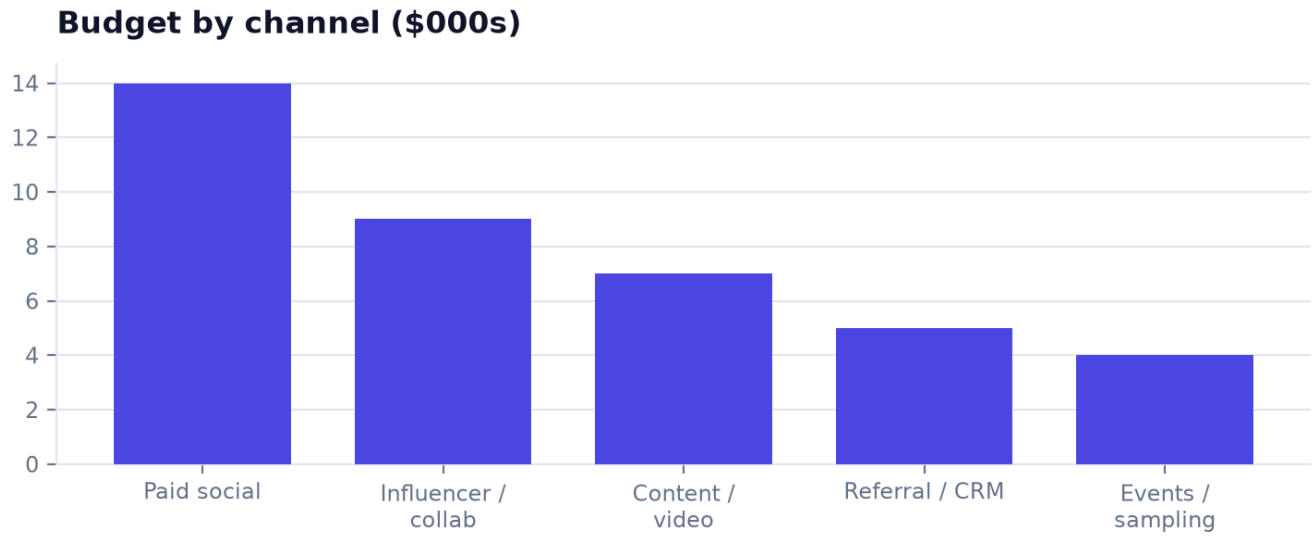

Positioning

For people who wear casual shoes daily but do not want to decide what to buy, Crocs Club is the quarterly refresh that picks your next pair . because a comfort habit should be handled, not homework.

Targeting (sequence)

- Local / direct buyers (40%) . easiest, validates product, generates word-of-mouth.
- Gift buyers (30%) . seasonal, price-insensitive; fund Q4 acquisition.

- Remote / digital-first (30%) . highest growth, requires strong onboarding.

Budget by channel ($000s)

Mix

ELEMENT	DECISION
Product (3 tiers)	Classic (1/yr), Club (quarterly, hero), Custom (made-to-order)
Price	$49 / quarter (Club); $129 (Custom); no launch discount . first box includes free personalization
Place	Website (primary), app (subscription management), wholesale (corporate gifting)
Promotion	Earned first, paid second; story-first content; collaboration drops for reach

Action programs

Q1 . Foundation

- Launch landing page and subscription flow.
- Instrument email/SMS capture in retail stores (QR + incentive).
- Shoot the customization experience for reuse.

> OWNER / REVIEW
>
> Owner: Growth lead. First review: end of January.

Q2 . Launch

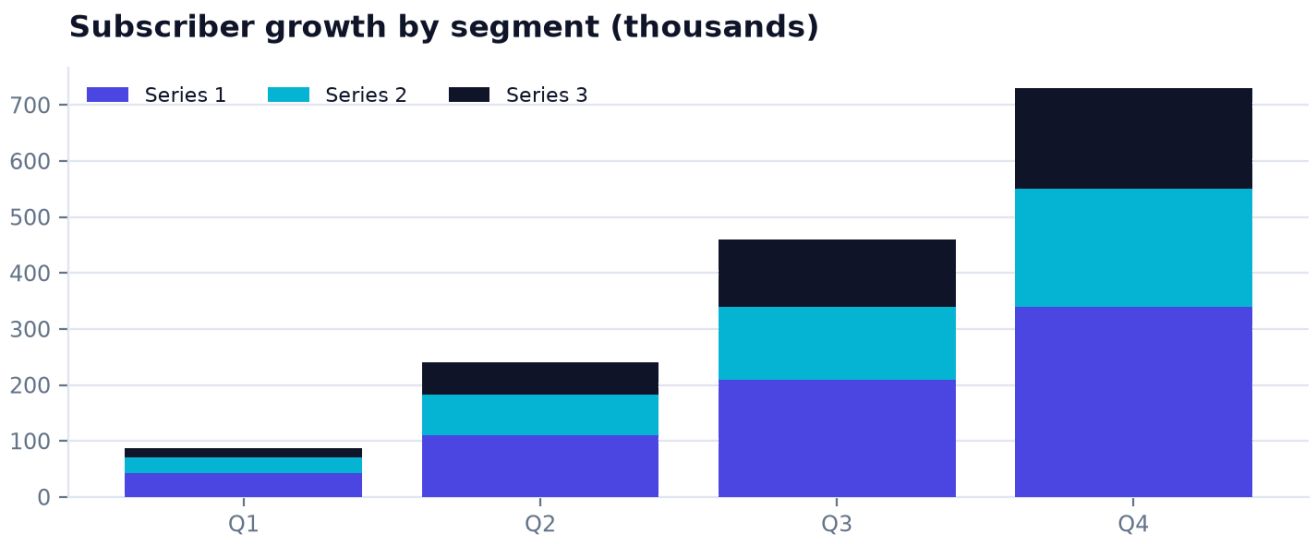

- Launch to existing 4.2m list before paid spend.
- Referral: one free quarter for referrer + friend.
- Launch first collaboration drop for earned reach.

Q3 . Scale

- Move paid budget to best-performing creative.
- Open corporate gifting page for Q4 pipeline.
- Introduce win-back flow at cancellation.

Q4 . Gifting and retention

- Gift subscription with branded card.
- Subscriber-only release event.
- Publish “year in comfort” brand report.

Subscriber growth by segment (thousands)

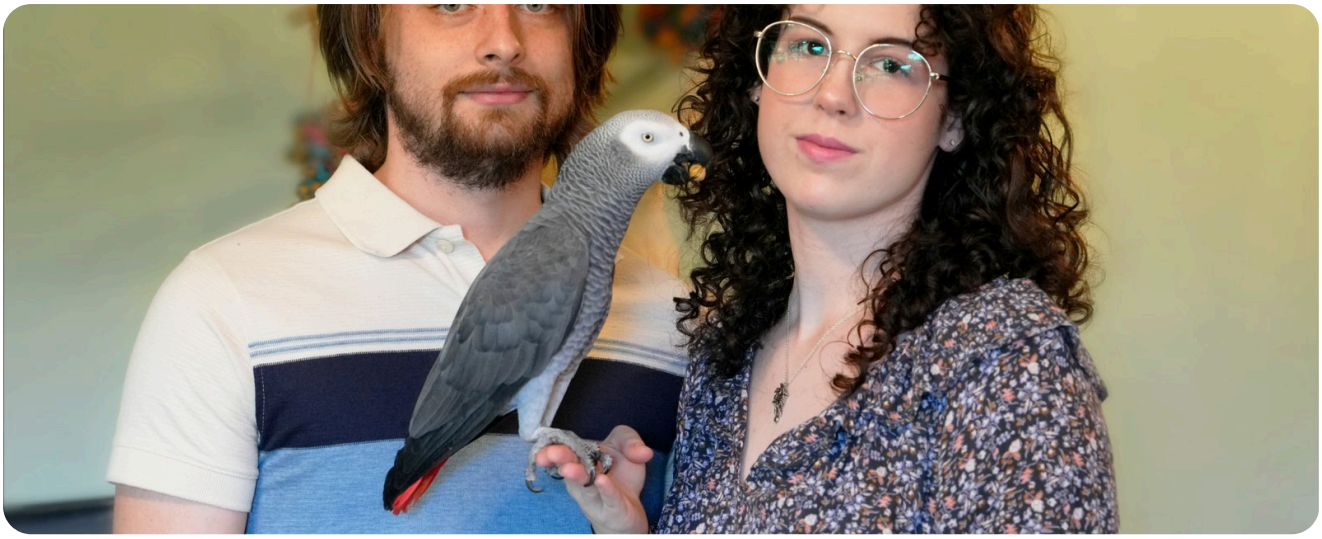

Fig. 2 Comfort shoe customization process

Wikipedia contributors · CC BY-SA · Wikipedia

Budget

LINE	Q1	Q2	Q3	Q4	TOTAL
Paid social	3	4	4	3	14
Influencer / collab	2	2	3	2	9
Content / video	2	2	2	1	7
Referral / CRM	1	1	2	1	5
Events / sampling	1	1	1	1	4
Total	9	10	12	8	39

Controls

Measurement

Review a dashboard monthly: subscribers, quarterly recurring revenue, churn, CAC, gross margin. Outside tolerance → written review within two weeks.

Cadence

CADENCE	FORUM	RIGHTS
Weekly	Growth stand-up	Creative / channel tactics
Monthly	Performance review	Budget reallocation up to 10%
Quarterly	Strategy review	Pricing, tiers, segment focus

RETHINK TRIGGER

If quarterly churn exceeds 12% for two consecutive months, pause paid acquisition until onboarding and first-box experience are fixed.

Risk and mitigation

RISK	L	I	MITIGATION
Brand fatigue	M	M	Collaboration pace capped; customization keeps product fresh
Acquisition cost rise	H	M	Shift to referral / organic first; price subscription at premium
Supply cost spike	M	H	Forward contracts; review pricing quarterly
Churn above target	M	H	Win-back flow; customization as lock-in

IMAGE CREDITS

- Crocs shoe product photo - Tatsuo Yamashita from Tokyo, Japan · CC BY 2.0 · Wikimedia Commons (CC BY 2.0)
- Comfort shoe customization process - Wikipedia contributors · CC BY-SA · Wikipedia (CC BY-SA)